Eau Claire, WI Dawg Ball Hitting Camp

Trevor Burmeister: MiLB Hitting Coach Colorado Rockies

Nick Gile: Professional Baseball Player

Dawg Ball is a winter baseball hitting camp in Wisconsin. Founder of Dawg Ball is Trevor Burmeister, a Verona native, current MiLB hitting coach for the Colorado Rockies. Co-Founder, Nick Gile, is a Menomonee Falls native and current professional baseball player. Burmeister and Gile have worked extensively together for the last 7+ years. Dawg Ball camps are an educational based operation, utilizing an easy-to-follow format, focusing on giving hitters simple but specific tools for their growth as individual hitters. Every kid has their own uniqueness to how they move! We focus on 1) maintaining athleticism, 2) landing on time, in a good position to hit, 3) bat path and direction, 4) the “brakes” of the swing. Dawg Ball strives to have a lasting impact on each camper, leaving them with physical and mental tools necessary for success in their baseball careers.

What's Included with your Registration?!

- 1) Camps limited to 12 participants for a TRUE personal connection with each camper
- 2) A journal given to each camper with premade pages/visuals encouraging a growth environment
- 3) A private PowerPoint of drills given to each camper to refer to when away from a Dawg Ball Camp
- 4) FREE ACCESS TO TWO ZOOM CALLS A MONTH (NOV-JAN) WITH MLB/MiLB SPECIAL GUESTS. FIRST CALL WILL BE WITH ROCKIES 1ST AND 2ND ROUND PICKS OF THE 2024 DRAFT CHARLIE CONDON, AND JARED THOMAS! MLB OUTFIELDER JORDAN BECK HAS ALSO COMMITTED TO A CALL!
- 5) A question-and-answer portion post camp (parents highly encouraged to attend!)

We strive to give the best experience to every player that attends a Dawg Ball Camp. In addition, our experience isn't just limited to your camp day! We want to build a community that sticks together, which is why we are so excited to offer the special guest zoom calls to all our camp participants, where we can all get together and learn from significant MLB and MiLB special guests! A priceless value for your growth!
